Safety in Ag for Youth (SAY) Belief Statement

The Safety in Agriculture for Youth (SAY) Project National Steering Committee developed a belief statements document regarding youth working in agriculture which has been endorsed by seven organizations. A full list of endorsees will be maintained on the SAY website. The belief statements outline consensus-based beliefs and principles that promote safety and health for youth working in agriculture. Click here to view the belief statement. If your state, multi-state, or national organization would like to endorse the belief statement, contact Dennis Murphy and Aida Balsano.

Ag and Health Insurance Research Project

University of VT, Walsh Center for Rural Health Policy & Center for Rural Affairs has partnered on a 4-year USDA funded research grant to understand the unique health insurance needs of farm and ranch families. They are recruiting farmers and ranchers in 10 states to participate for their research interviews, discussing experiences with health insurance and the farm enterprise. Participants will receive $200 over the course of 2 confidential phone interviews. All information will be kept confidential. For more information, contact Katlyn Morris, Project Coordinator or visit the flyer on their website.
