Safety in Agriculture for Youth Project

The 92nd National FFA Convention and Safety in Agriculture for Youth (SAY) work hand in hand to help students prepare for their futures. Over 3,000 FFA student members and educators walked through the SAY booth where they were able to interact, communicate, and simulate with various safety activities, to learn the importance of safety education with real life situations that could potentially save their life, or the life of their peers, in the future. The movie “SILO” was on to demonstrate, through film art, the importance of farm safety and highlight the very real dangers grain entrapment. This year’s attendance exceeded our expectations and we are excited to continue this partnership with FFA and SAY for many years to come. We know the 93rd National FFA Convention will be even bigger and better next year!

SAY was also part of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agent conference in West Virginia and provided educators with resources to integrate safety and health into their club activities.
